Additional Conference

Critical Thoughts 20-21 Nov 08

Critical thinking should be at home in the university environment. This conference brings together ideas around the nature and vocation of the university, discussion on models and the effects of governance, and the wider social expectations of the academic community. Some of the areas to be explored include: The nature and purpose of research, The role of critic and conscience of society, Reconciling higher learning and corporate governance, and Approaches to teaching critical thinking.

The call is currently out for papers and is not limited to the academic community. Please check out the web site-www.criticalthoughts.org.nz

Registration details to come through the web site.
